

Three hour workshop for children

“STORY, STAGE & SCENE”

Did you ever wish that you could just jump into the imaginary world of your inner child? Did you ever wish you could just climb a tree and forget about your worries and troubles?

Just imagine for a few minutes you could close your eyes and pretend you were a totally different person living in a different part of the world, and experiencing something new. That’s what I did as I created these stories. This is one of my favorite workshops to teach, and all materials are provided.

This series of make believe stories has been the most fun I have had as an artist. I lead my students into letting go of all “shoulds” that are limiting, and encourage submersion into the imagination.

The stories come to life in a 3D miniature display, using several materials from my Mixed Media studio. The base is pre- cut out of wood to about 12” x 12” and the project is started by using clay and natural materials like bark and sea shells. The story is written simultaneously with the creation of the scene. This process shows that when you start working with the materials, creativity starts flowing and wonderful stories come to life!
